Looking to gain research experience? Want a job on campus this summer?

Earn money and gain unique, hands-on research experience working with IPR faculty experts as a Summer Undergraduate Research Assistant.

- Pay is $10.40 per hour
- Students typically work 35 hours per week for 10 weeks, but schedules can be flexible
- Those majoring in social science fields are preferred, but all majors are welcome
- Some possibility of continued work with professors during the academic year
- Previous research experience is a plus, but not necessarily required
- At the beginning of the program, students will participate in a training session on statistical methods and computing, as well as tips on being a good research assistant.

How to Apply

Information for the 2016 application period is available at:
www.ipr.northwestern.edu/about/student-research/surap/

Applications should include:
- an unofficial transcript; a resume describing the applicant’s education, work experience, and computer skills; and a short personal statement

The deadline for applications is February 26, 2015. However, students are advised to apply early, as faculty members might begin reviewing applications at any time.

Eligibility

The program is open to all Northwestern freshmen, sophomores, and juniors.
Graduating seniors and students from other institutions are not eligible.

Selection will be based on the student’s record, the faculty member’s proposed research, and the proposed role of the student in that research.

For more information and to apply, visit www.ipr.northwestern.edu/about/student-research/surap/